London, Nov. 1 .- Ambassador and Mrs. Page were present at the wedding yesterday at St. George's, Han-Square, of Brigadier General William Crozier, chief of ordnance, United States Army, and Miss Mary Williams, daughter of the late Mr. and

Mrs. Charles Williams, of Washington, Magnificent in the extreme were the floral decorations, each alternate pew being adorned with a huge bouquet of lilies, while the choir and stalls were almost hidden behind masses of foliage and white flowers.

Bridegroom and best man, the latter being Major George O. Squier, military attaché, wore full military uniform in dark blue with quantities of gold braid and heavy epaulettes, while the bride, who was given away by her brother, William Williams, was in a gown of soft cream charmeuse and brocade and fine tulle, with mass of white plumes on a draped white velvet toque. She on emerging from the church donned a smart coat in the same brocade with a new style of throwover collar edged with ermine and finished with heavy silk tassels
